

SEMINAR ANNOUNCEMENT

Alcoholism and drug addiction cost U.S. businesses $120 billion annually due to absenteeism, diminished productivity, on-the-job injuries, and potential company liability. Moreover, nearly 75% of those who currently use illicit drugs are employed – some very possibly at your company. To help lower costs and combat these problems, many employers adopt drug testing policies. However, those charged with administering the policies often use a nonsensical approach and do not receive adequate training.

Learn a common-sense, practical approach to drug testing - and fill a critical training gap - by attending this information-packed seminar. Council staff and expert guest speaker, Paul Teynor, MD, MPH, a certified Medical Review Officer (MRO) at Intermountain MRO Services, will cover topics including:

- ▶ The importance of identifying and responding to drug abuse in the workplace
- ▶ The legal implications of drug abuse testing
- ▶ The collection, testing, and confirmation processes
- ▶ The signs and symptoms of drug abuse in the workplace
- ▶ The options available to employers when an employee tests positive
- ▶ The elements of an effective drug testing program & policy

Who should attend: Anyone who oversees or administers their company's drug testing policy, including human resource professionals, safety personnel, and managers.
